United Response
support that changes with you

Everyone deserves to live their lives to the full.

At United Response, we work alongside people with learning disabilities, autistic people and people with mental health needs to live the life they choose.

Who we are

We believe everyone deserves choice, independence and the opportunity to thrive. We support people to achieve their ambitions, build relationships and be part of their communities. Find out more here:

Why your fundraising matters

Your fundraising could help create more opportunities for people to do the things we all enjoy and value

How your support helps

Your support can help people:

- Make a home and feel part of a neighbourhood
- Discover new interests and try new things
- Build relationships and spend time with people who matter
- Learn new skills and find work

Your donations could support

£13

An hour of job coaching to help someone develop their skills, explore opportunities and find a job that's right for them.

£60

Tools and equipment for a community allotment, where people can learn new skills, grow things and enjoy doing something together.

£100

A day out for 5 people to explore somewhere new, spend time together and make memories.

£200

A six-week art course where people can explore their creativity, learn new skills, enjoy themselves and connect with others.
