Easy-Read Manifesto

Green Party

Jonathan Bartley and Sian Berry are the joint leaders of the Green Party of England and Wales. This is what they promise to do for the United Kingdom (UK).

Energy

They want to stop pollution and climate change by increasing wind farms and solar power. They want to stop using petrol cars and have more electric cars to help the environment.

Housing

They want to build more houses so that more people can live in their own homes, including disabled people. They want all new houses to be warm but better for the environment.

Transport

They want more buses and trains that are cheap and easy to use for disabled people. They will make more footpaths so people can walk more and roads just for people who ride bikes.

Jobs and business

They want businesses to stop polluting the environment. Instead they want to create more jobs where people can help the environment.

Countryside

They want to plant lots more trees all over the country. They want more farms which make healthy food that is better for us to eat and helps the environment.

Money

They want everyone to get some money from the Government so people are not scared of their money running out. They want disabled people to get more money and will try to make care for disabled people free.

Brexit - leaving the EU

They want to stop Brexit so our country stays in the European Union. They think that we can work with other countries to stop pollution and improve the environment.

Voting

They want a better voting system and for young people to vote from age 16. They think this will help the environment get better more quickly. They will also help disabled people get involved in politics.

Quality of life

They want to spend more money so that people feel better and have better lives. They want to spend money so there is less pollution and the environment gets better.

Tax

They want to spend less on things which aren't really needed. They want rich people to pay more money to help the environment and help make more people happy.

About United Response

United Response is a national charity providing a range of tailored support for adults and young people with learning disabilities or autism across England and Wales. Our vision is a society of equal rights and access where disabled people have the opportunity to live the lives they want to lead.

A core part of our work is ensuring those with learning disabilities or autism are informed – both about the news and world which surrounds them, but also about the choices they have when it comes to voting. Everyone should have the opportunity to take up their legal right to vote, but too few people with learning disabilities are doing so.

Our award-winning Easy News publication is the first-ever news magazine designed to be accessible for people with learning disabilities, while our Every Vote Counts campaign provides them with easy information on politics and how getting involved in local and national elections can directly affect their lives.
